RALEIGH, N. C., September 26.—
Thursday Daniel Salmon, of Johnston county, went to Clayton and sold his cetton. He went home, took out the mule and stabled him, and fell dead. When his wife reached the spot her little child was playing with its father's head, apparently unmindful of its loss.

The outlook a year age rendered it presumable that Heaufort county would be the banner rice county, but the present crop is a failure. Never has there been a more gloomy outlook.

The south-bound passenger train ran over and killed in Gaston county a little child three years old, daughter of Mr. Mayhew. The child was playing with another in a deep cut. There being a curve in the road they were not observed by the engineer until too lets to ston the train. The other child.

A London special says: Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, is dead. The Right Hon. Anthony Ashley-Cooper, Earl of Shaftesbury, K. G., was born in London, April 28, 1801, and was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he obtained a first-class in classics in 1822, graduated M. A. in 1832, and was created D. C. L. in 1841. He was returned as Lord Ashley, mem-Woodstock in 1826, and supported the governments of Liver-pool and Canning, and in the administration of the Duke of Wellington was a commissioner of the Board of Control. He was returned for Dorchester in 1830, and for Dorsetshire in 1831, which county he represented till February, 1846. He was elected one of the members for Bath in August, 1847, and sat for that borough until he succeeded his father in the peerage in 1851. He was a Lord of the Admiralty in the late Sir R. Peel's adminisagain took office, in 1841, Lord Ashy was invited to join the adminthat the Premier's views would not permit him to support the ten-hours bill. In public life his lordship acted with great independence. The chief object for which he has labored, in and out of Parliament, was the improve-ment of the social condition of the la-boring classes. His influence in the England was considerable. He was president of the Bible Society, the Pasthe Conversion of the Jews, and was formerly president of the Pro-testant Alliance. Lord Shaftesbury clearly perceived, especially in the case of the young and the feethat the law must intervene between the master and the servant. This principle led him, in his younger days, as Lord Ashley, to advocate the abolition of boy-chimneysgility. The same principle induced him to support the ten-hours bill, and he declined to join Sir Robert Peel's he declined to join Sir Robert Peel's Ministry in 1841, because that statesman refused to lend his aid to the mea-sure. He started "ragged schools." To the school honest employment was added, for these poor lads were almost all anxious to work if they could get work, and as Lord Shaftesbury observed that all the old shoeblacks had died out, and that no one had taken their places, he determined to organize a shoeblack brigade, and a very useful body they are. In brief, wherever there was a worthy work to be done—a poverty-stricken, miserable class to be raised into comfort and Christianity—Lord Shaftesbury's name and aid were sure to be given. One of the latest of the Shaftesbury's name and aid were sure to be given. One of the latest of the good Earl's good works was the establishment of his model college, near Clapham Junction, for clerks, artisans, and laborers. The Earl of Shaftesbury was married in 1830 to Lady Emily Cowper, eldest daughter of the fifth Earl Cowper, and by her had four sons and three daughters. The eldest son, Lord Ashley, the heir to the earldom, is fifty-three years of are. He has never

Mr. James N. Dennes in Fairfax.

Mr. James N. Dunlop took the people of Fairfax by storm. A correspondent of the Alexandria Gazette.

Writing from Fairfax Courthouse, says:

Mr. Dunlop for an hour and a half held his audience spell-bound with one of the most eloquent and effective speeches we have ever heard. He particularly warned the people not to allow themselves to be deceived by the blandishments of so-called "Independent Democrats." Mahone's every effort was now to gain the Legislature, and his favorite scheme in counties where the vote was close and his party in danger of losing was to bring out "Independent Democrats." The people abould demand of them what they meant by the term "Independent," and force a categorical answer to the question, "If you go to the Legislature will you vote for Mahone as the next United States senator, or will you vote for the Democratic candidate?" Mr.

Duolop showed in the happiest manner how they had already confessed they only expected "to draw the weak minded or the weak-kneed" from our ranks, and asked the question, "Where is there the man who will, by his vote, acknowledge that he accepts the condemnation they have already passed upon him, and by that vote admit that he deserves the brand of being one of the idiots or cowards whom alone they say they expect to gain?" Mr. Dunlop closed amid great applause, and Messrs. Chichester and Moore made well-timed and excellent addresses.

[New York Tribune of Saturday.]

Congressman A. J. Warner, of Ohio, has been in the city conferring with bankers and business-men in reference to silver measures in Congress. When asked about his proposed bill, he said to a Tribune reporter:

"I have prepared a draft, but have not wished to give it to the public, because it is subject to changes which may result from criticisms passed on it by prominent financiers, Treasury officials, and others. None of the details of my plan will be held to tenaciously. It is the principle only that I am particular the principle only that I am particular about. The question must be taken up by the next Congress. There will be a strong pressure, no doubt, to step absolutely the coinage of silver. The eastern press clearly enough indicates this."

"Will it be stopped?"
"I do not believe it will be, without substituting something else in its

out substituting something else in its place. That issue involves the whole question of bimetallism. Stop the coinage and the last link that holds coinage and the last link that holds silver to its place as a money metal is gone. Bimetallists understand this perfectly well. Nobody who does not expect to get a commission to go to Europe believes that stopping coinage here will force other countries to join us in a fixed international ratio. All Miss Blanche Fentress; Marshal, R. S.
Shields. R. H. Whitaker, of Raleigh, and J. F. Murrill, of Hickory, were chosen representatives to the Grand Lodge of the World, which meets in Richmond, Va., next Monday. It was decided that the next meeting of the Grand Lodge of the State should be held at Raleigh.

In Carthage Thursday, as a threeyear-old child of Mr. A. V. Kelly was playing in the streets of the town, a ly subsidiary money. All silver mere ly subsidiary money. All silver metal then, except that now in the form of coin, would be excluded from monetary

Neither had the relator or his With no silver made into money, the gold-mines yield no more than is re-quired for the arts and dentistry. Hence to exclude silver entirely is absolutely to cut off all supply of metallie money. Our population may double, as it will, in about thirty years, but still, having locked out silver and used

"But that is not all. If the metallic basis is narrowed paper money must be narrowed correspondingly. What a prospect for the next quarter of a century that mould account. that would present as compared with the quarter of a century from 1850 to 1875. During that quarter California and Australia added $3,750,000,000 of gold and about half that amount of silver to the world's stock of the two metals. More than $3,000,000,000 of this supply went into money. What an era that quarter of a century was! Now reverse all that and for the next quarter of a century give us no money supply, and what can we expect? It would and what can we expect? It would simply be a turn to the dark ages.

Think of abandoning silver entirely and although the relator had the right reducing the world's stock of money from gold and silver to gold alone, and changing the standard from bimetallic tration in 1834-'35, and on the removal from the House of Commons of the late Mr. Sadler took charge of the ten-hours' bill. step that will lead to such a result. "The practical question then is, Is there a basis on which the silver question can be settled without overthrowing the principles of bimetallism? I think there is, and to reach such a settlement is the object of the bill re-ferred to. The ground principle of the bill is this: Stop the present coinage, and in lieu of that issue certificates on the deposit of silver bullion at its mar-ket value or actual ratio to gold at the time of deposit. In other words, it is to make the use of silver as money con- | citizens, form to the actual market or commercial ratio between the two metals. I an international ratio between the two metals, which is fixed by the commerce of the world. If, then, we can tie silver to this ratio, it will accomplish the sweeping, as it led him afterwards in Parliament to endeavor to restrain the employment of young children by circums and shows in dangerous feats of only be done by issuing certificates on bullion. This ratio of silver to gold may be determined for each calendar month by the Secretary of the Treaof silver bullion in the open market in New York during the preceding menth. Or the price or ratio to gold may be determined for each day by tak-ing the mean selling price in the open ing day. In this way certificates would issue always at the gold price of silver. The certificates after being issued can be kept at the same level by being made redeemable in lawful money, or, at the option of the Government, in silver bullion at its market price at the time of redemption. Thus the quantity of bullion multiplied by its price would determine the quantity of money certificates that would grow out of the deposit of the bullion. But once issued, their value would not change any more than gold or greenbacks change.

than gold or greenbacks change."
"How about support of the bill?"
"Extreme gold- and extreme silvermen generally oppose the bill, but all who believe that a growing country like ours requires an adequate money supply, and who believe that the metals ought to go into use on a common level, favor it, and I think I may say that almost fifty-three years of age. CIVIL-SERVICE SUIT.

MR. HINCKLEY IS SHUT OFF

NEW YORK, September 26.—The que-warranto proceedings of James A. Hinckley against Dorman B. Eaton, Lercy D. Thoman, and John M. Gregory, Civil-Service Commissioners, came up before Judge Wallace in the United States Circuit Court this morning. Hinckley asked leave to begin an action to remove the commissioners an action to remove the commissioners and abolish the commission on the ground of unconstitutionality. The court-room was crowded with friends and enemies of civil-service reform. United States District-Attorney Dorunited States District-Attorney Dorsheimer and Dorman B. Eaton appeared for the commissioners, while Morris S. Miller represented Mr. Hinckley. In opening Mr. Dorsneimer said that the case was an important one, and as all the parties interested were present he thought it should be disposed of. Judge Wallace decided to hear the motion after the call of the regular calendar.

Mr. Miller, when Hinckley's case was called, demanded to know who appeared for the defendants. "I appear for all these defendants." said the District Attorney, "and by direction of the Attorney, "and by direction of the President of the United States," Mr. Miller objected to the commissioners being represented by a Government offi-cial, as the United States has not any real status in the case. Mr. Dorsheime then moved the Court to decide whether or not the argument should be confined only to the constitutional jurisdiction of the court. He said he was instructed to say that he and the Attorney-General were prepared to defend the constitu-tionality of the act appointing the com-missioners. Judge Wallace sustained the motion.

In his argument Mr. Dorsheimer said: "The relator is a citizen who seeks the abolishment of the office of commissioner of civil-service reform because the commissioners, by the pow-ers conferred upon them, usurped the rights of the President to the appointing power. The petitioner has no standing in court because the right to a quo warranto writ only applied to the usurpation of sovereign rights, and the United States alone could bring such an action in the United States courts, and then only through its appointed officers. Neither had the relator or his ney-General to commence such action, and the United States alone had the right to test the constitutionality of the act providing for the commission. The rule as he stated it, he said, was fully demonstrated in the case of Wallace as it will, in about thirty years, but still, having locked out silver and used up gold for other purposes, there will be no more money for 120,000,000 than at present for 60,000,000 of people.

But that is not all. If the metallic is of the Supreme Caut of the United it is not all. If the metallic is of the Supreme Caut of the United it is not all. tice of the Supreme Court of the United States, on the ground that the United States alone could sue for such a writ, and then only through legally-appointed officers. To bring the action properly he maintained that the relator should have applied to the executive and not to the judicial authority."

In reply Counsellor Miller contended, on behalf of the relator Hinckley, that his client had the statutatory right to apply for the writ, for the citizen created the Constitution, and my client as a citizen has a right to avail himself of all to apply for redress either to the executive, legislative, or judicial bodies. "The Attorney-General," writ of quo warranto, then it is the business of the court to find me a remedy, for my client is entitled to a petition for right. My argument is almost out of order, but that is caused by the upon me by the other side, for it was my intention to argue the whole ques-tion at once."

fine yourself to giving me authorities."
The Commission, continued Mr. Miller, exercised unwarranted powers and was directly opposed to the rights of Judge Wallace: "I can't sit here and listen to arguments on abstract propositions. This discussion must be said we have been trying to secure a concurrence of leading nations on a fixed international ratio. Now there is always ternational ratio between the two but you have not submitted any. I think it is time to close the discussion. There is but one case which could give you a basis for your application, and that was an application in the State court of Massachusetts, and was dein the bill I have prepared. This can nied. Staples we sha by public auction, on the premises, on MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1885, monday, september 28, 1885, at 4% o'clock P, M., his handsome, admirably-located, well-built, and conveniently-arranged RE-IDENCE, No. 707 west Grace street, between Pine and Laurel. The LOT fronts 30 feet and runs back 150 feet to a paved siley 20 feet wide.

The house was built in 1883 of first-class material and in the best manner, under his own daily supervision as well as that of an experienced architect. The foundation is the very best, and the walls are thirteen inches thick. On the first door is a hall ten feet wide, with stairway four feet wide; two parlors 14 feet 3 inches by 16 feet 8 inches each; a large dining-room; store-room; pantry, with hot and cold water; kitchen, with stailonary wash-tubs, hot and-cold water, and one of the best Warren ranges. Front-, back-, and side-porches. On the second floor three chambers (corresponding with the parlors and dining-room), wide hall and hall-room, balcony; rear- and side-porches. Bath-room furnished with the latest and best improvements, and servant's room heated from the range. The third story is a Mansard divided into two large chambers and a hull-room. The cellars are paved and cemented—that ander the kitchen being for fuel, and that under the dining room is supplied with the very best furnace (Warrens, No. 41), which heats the house in winter and saves about one third of the fuel. All the rooms also have free-piaces and grates, and are furnished with matelized mantels; and the health of parlors with very handsome crystal pondant chandelers.

The house isentirely detached, having its own private aley on the east side and an open space of 11 feet on the west, The back yard has been planted with choice grapevines and fruit-trees. The unobstructed view of Monroe Park from the windows of the rear rooms and porches is a great attraction, and one which cannot be duplicated.
